Coverage Rationale

Surgical Extraction of an Erupted Tooth
Surgical Extraction of an Erupted Tooth is indicated for any of the following:
- No clinical crown is visible in the mouth
- The fracture of a tooth or roots during a non-surgical extraction procedure
- Erupted teeth with unusual root morphology (dilacerations, cementosis)
- Erupted teeth with developmental abnormalities that would make non-surgical extraction unsafe or cause harm
- When fused to an adjacent tooth
- In the presence of periapical lesions
- For maxillary posterior teeth whose roots extend into the maxillary sinus
- When tooth has been crowned or been treated endodontically

Surgical Removal of Residual Tooth Roots
Surgical Removal of Residual Tooth Roots is indicated when tooth roots or fragments of tooth roots remain in the bone following a previous incomplete tooth extraction.

Definitions

Surgical Extraction of an Erupted Tooth: A tooth requiring removal of bone and/or sectioning of tooth, and including elevation of mucoperiosteal flap if indicated. Includes related cutting of gingiva and bone, removal of tooth structure, minor smoothing of socket bone and closure. (ADA, 2017)

Applicable Codes

Description of Services

Surgical extraction is the removal of a tooth that presents clinically with a condition that does not safely or adequately allow access using a non-surgical approach. Surgical extractions require an incision, elevation, and bone removal. It may be an entire tooth, or any part of a tooth, including retained roots.

Pursuant to CA AB2585: While not common in dentistry, nonpharmacological pain management strategies should be encouraged if appropriate.
